Eltham man wins Welcare Volunteer Award

Paul Pugsley from Eltham has been awarded a prestigious Volunteer Impact Award by Welcare – the children and family support charity for south London.

The Impact Award was presented for the volunteer who had: Made a considerable impact on a child or family, demonstrated enormous commitment, provided consistent and effective support and empowered those using Welcare's services.

Paul Pugsley has volunteered regularly for over two years in the Welcare centre located in Nightingale Lane in Woolwich. Paul demonstrates flexibility and outstanding commitment, which is highly valued by everyone, especially father, attending the parenting courses.

Paul was presented with his award by The Rt Reverend Christopher Chessun, Bishop of Southwark and President of Welcare, at a ceremony in Central London on Friday 30th September.

Anna Khan Welcare CEO commented "Paul is a true celebrity in our fame obsessed world. Without the vital contribution of our volunteers we would not be able to help and support as many children and families"
